How a Cash Drop Sponsorship Works

1 • Fund the Drop

A sponsoring brand funds the cash reward for a Cash Drop — a real-money reward hidden or released at a location in a live market.

2 • GUBER Runs It

GUBER places and promotes the drop to its local user base through the app — no media buy required from the sponsor.

3 • Winner Posts Proof

The winner photographs themselves claiming the reward and posts it publicly, tagging GUBER — organic content the sponsor doesn't have to produce.

Per GUBER's internal revenue model, sponsor dollars on Cash Drops run at roughly a 60% margin to the platform, on top of the reward paid to the winner.

Pricing

[PRICING TO BE CONFIRMED BY FOUNDER] — GUBER has not yet published a fixed sponsorship rate card. Package structure (single-drop, multi-city, regional, or national), reward-fund minimums, and placement add-ons (in-app banner, push notification, homepage feature) will be proposed and finalized directly with each sponsor based on market, timing, and campaign scope. No pricing shown here should be treated as final until confirmed in a written sponsorship agreement signed by GUBER Global LLC.

GUBER's proof isn't a projection — it's already happening. Every winner below is a real GUBER user who found a sponsored Cash Drop in their city, photographed by them, posted by them. No actors, no staging.

"Going straight to my church!"

— Jamie K., Cash Drop winner

"Found it — took me about 30 minutes."

— Kyle H., Cash Drop winner

"Cash Drop claimed."

— Klin B., Cash Drop winner

"Cash Drop winner — early adopter."

— James E., Cash Drop winner

"Real winner. Real cash. No fakes."

Multiple shares on a single winner post — organic reach, no paid promotion behind it.

- Real proof, not impressions. Winners produce the content — GUBER and the sponsor don't have to.
- Local targeting. Sponsor specific cities or regions as GUBER expands market by market.
- Ground-floor timing. 27 Cash Drops are already live with zero paid acquisition spend behind them — sponsors are getting in before the rate card is even set.
- Flexible commitment. Terms are negotiated directly — no fixed long-term contract required to start a conversation.
